5. Session Four: Other Business

- A. Old Business: Presbytery Discussion Topics (as time allows)
 - i. Church growth - Without wanting to take on the baggage of modern church growth movements, discuss and perhaps even develop strategies for church growth within our Presbytery and the broader CREC as most of our churches are small and need to grow in numbers to be sustainable in the long run. Identifying what has/hasn't worked in the past as well as developing biblically faithful ways to promote the distinctives of the CREC may be a promising way to begin this discussion. Additionally, the session and congregants should both understand what their role is and isn't in this area.

- ii. Pastoral Care - Given the relative infancy of the CREC, its churches, and leadership as well as the reluctance of pastors to speak up for themselves, it could be helpful if the Presbytery could discuss and provide general guidelines for caring for their pastors. Included in this would be discussions of expectations for salary, health insurance, pastoral expenses, retirement, vacation time, schooling for children, etc., as well as warnings about the 'hidden' duties of pastors that most cannot see, pastoral burnout/discouragement, and things that have an appearance of worth but in reality waste a great deal of a pastor's time.

B. New Business

- i. Voting for Presbytery Delegates to Council

(Under the CREC Constitution Article IV Section B Subsection 2, the Council members from each of your respective Presbyteries must be seated as Presbytery delegates during the meeting immediately preceding the Council meeting in Minneapolis). Presently, Tyndale's two delegates are Jeff Evans and Burke Shade, nominated and elected in 2008.

- ii. Discussion of Council Motions.
